Hate Crimes

1:00 p.m. - 5:00 p.m.

Target Audience: mid-level command staff, investigators and detectives, and patrol and responding officers.

Hate crimes are a particularly heinous attack on a victim or group's identity because of their race, religion, national origin, gender, sexual orientation, or disability. Hate crime victims suffer potentially serious and pervasive traumatic stress which, if not handled effectively, could be exacerbated by ineffective or inappropriate police response. For this reason, and others, law enforcement officers must be particularly skilled in the sensitivities of these heinous crimes.

Swift and effective identification, investigation, prosecution, and response to victim needs is critical for developing and nurturing respect within our diverse communities. This seminar will provide instruction on the unique nature of hate crimes, the impact of hate crimes on the community, the legal framework of hate crime laws, the signs, symbols, terminology, and culture of hate groups, offender profiles, initial response procedures, investigative strategies, interviewing techniques, common mistakes and how to avoid them, reporting procedures, community resources, addressing victims' needs, and proactive community policing alternatives.
